

As a trusted partner, Precision couples expertise in discovery with creativity in software design to build solutions for client success.

Precision Managed Review saves our client 75% in review costs

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

Our client faced the nearly impossible task of completing a discovery project from collection through review and production in just four days – including a holiday weekend. With 100,000 documents to review, our Managed Review team quickly assessed our client’s needs and designed a review process that seamlessly merged managed review experience with analytics technology. Through our proactive and intelligent approach, the client achieved an efficient and defensible review, and saved over 75% in review costs.

The Challenge

Our client had an unexpected change in scope of document review – 175% over the client’s initial estimate. After collection and processing, the client had expected search terms to eliminate a majority of documents from their review. However, with only four days left to review and produce, the searches actually returned over 100,000 documents. Complicating matters, the production deadline occurred over a national holiday weekend – and the budget remained the same.

We believe that e-discovery can be better. We are committed to providing a comprehensive solution for our clients that fit their legal and business needs.

Jerry Barbanel, President and CEO

The Issue

Clients are often challenged with the unexpected: increased data sizes, production deadlines, budget constraints and collection issues. When faced with these variables, traditional review practices typically fall back on brute force for document review by “peopling up.” But this reactive approach is inefficient, expensive and often inadequate in a dynamic litigation. Instead, we take a more proactive approach.

The Precision Solution

We always begin by working with counsel to understand the project goals and case. Here, Precision’s Managed Review team quickly determined the requirements and designed an approach combining attorney reviewers and technology, including email analytics, conversation threading and near de-duplication tools to amplify the review effort and increase efficiency and accuracy at scale.

We also stand behind our approach. In this matter, we used statistical sampling to validate the results of both the workflow and technology applied, and provided detailed affidavits that documented the entire process from collection through processing, review and production.

The Results

Our intelligent review planning process reduced the amount of documents requiring human review by over 75%, and our client met the deadline.

Our “start small” approach begins with an experienced team armed with powerful tools, and new reviewers are added as needed and trained on a project’s workflow.

This approach saves our clients time and money by maximizing the output of every review hour billed.

PrecisionDiscovery

 25 West 45TH Street
New York, New York 10036

 877-897-4545

 info@precisiondiscovery.com

 www.precisiondiscovery.com